Lambert, English Writer, Declares One Trip to Soviet Russia Knocked All the Bolshevism Out of Him.

Shevism Out of Him.

(Written for the international News Service by Ambrose Lambert, Former Correspondent in Russia for London Daily Express.)

LONDON, July 39.—I have just returned from soviet Russia after a probinged visit, and am not a Bolshevik. I remained too long to become one. Russia is the place effectually to cure any tendency to Bolshevism, providing you stay long enough. There is not one. I venture to say of those Russians whom the United States deported back to their native land who would not give his or her heart and soul to be back again in the United States. I met several of them, and managed to learn their real views. I will not indicate their identities, because of what I know of the conditions in Russia.

Had the duration of my stay in Russia been the fortnight to which Litvinoff (whom I personally like as I like many others whom I met) in his cleverness limited me in his permission to visit soviet Russia. I should probably have come away convinced that everything in the Bolshevist garden was lovely, and communism was a workable ideal stuitified in its realization by oppressive capitalism.

But I was permitted to stay on with the unintended result that I caught sufficient glimpses of the real naked conditions to realize that Bolshevism deserves no place in the scheme of Western democracy and that its greatest friends outside Russia are its greatest enemies, the men who everadvertise it and create for it an attraction, dangerous only by making a mystery of it.

Truth About Russia.

Truth About Russia.

The truth about Russia today is that the tyranny of a minority under caarism has simply been replaced by another minority tyranny every bit as ruthless, but without the glitter, glamor and bright lights of the imperial regime.

The Bolsheviks number, according to their own figures not more than 600,000. They are ruling a population of 150,000,000 because they happen to be the only disciplined and organized force that exists in Russia today. There is considerable analogy in the state of Russia and that of Ireland, where the terrorist group constitutes such an infinitesimal proportion of the population.

Facts have to be faced, and the Bolsheviks are ruling at least sections of the big cities, such as Petrograd and Moscow. They are not ruling the peasants, who are reveling in a prosperity of food and paper money, but suffering from an acute poverty of essentials of life such as clothes and salt. The question naturally arises, Why do not the peasants—numbering, as they do, over a hundred million—revolt? The anme answer applies to the decreasing multitudes in Moscow and Petrograd.

In addition, there is the terrorism. The famous secret police of exarist days.

Petrograd.

In addition, there is the terrorism. The famous secret police of exarist days has been replaced by the secret police of the Bolsheviks, both admirable as instruments of repression. Public physical outrages—that is, wholesale slaughters—no longer exist in the big cittes. Yet there continues the policy of secret arrest, imprisonment without trial and without charges, or extraord-irnary commission, as it is euphemistic ally termed, is over every man and woman living in Russia today.

No Personal Freedom.

There is no personal freedom.

There is no personal freedom in Russia today save for the elect and those who want to eat and live, and therefore join or pretend to sympathize or be of the elect. Gen. Brusiloff is no more a Bolshevik today than he ever was. He joined them for two reasons, the first a public one—his resentment as a Russian against outside interference. The second and dominating reason was that he is an old man who has lost practically everything he possessed in the world and needed a job to eat and live. In soviet Russia one's life is regulated by tyrannical rules. The word home has practically been eliminated. You live where you are told to live, and with whom the authorities tell you to live; you move only and when they tell you to move. There is no free press, nothing but Bolshevist newspapers and publications. Private property and the right of individual domifree press, nothing but Bolshevist newspapers and publications. Private property and the right of individual domicile have been abolished. Everything in theory, and very nearly in practice, belongs to the state; even the children whose physical care is, however, the one oasis in a huge desert of misery. If there is anything to eat they got it. That must be said to the credit of the Bolshevilss.

Personally I was treated with every

Personally I was treated with every consideration. I like the Bolsheviks I net. I like their constructive program a it is outlined on paper and by word f mouth. would make any sincere wisher

It would make any sincere wisher for the future welfare of a great country enthusiastic, but the trouble is that it is only on paper.

That is Russia today. They have not the canacity for self-government. They are children in sympathy, suspicion and cruelty.

WILL APPEAL TO STATE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION

BOARD OF EQUALIZATION

KNOXVILE, Tenn., July 30. (Spl.)—
Notice has been filed with the state equalization board by Tax Assessor Frank L. West that he will appeal from the assessment fixed by the county equalization board on the property of many corporations here, and will ask the state board to increase these assessments.

The Knox county equalization board, after more than a month's session, during which time they heard the complaints of property owners, reduced the assessments on property in the city and county as fixed by Mr. West by several millions of dollars.

Mr. West claims that he is backed by the report of the assessment on localized property of corporations as made here by C. K. Goodson, representative of the state public utilities commission, which approximated about $6,000,000. Before the county court fixed the tax rate at $1 inside the city. Mr. West issued a statement in which he claimed that a rate of $0 cents would create all the revenue the county would need, basing the claim on the increased assessment in the county. In this he agreed with Gov. (Roberts in regard to the amount of the rate.

MRS. VALLERY GRANTED ABSOLUTE DIVORCE

Mrs. Mabel Ruth Vallery was granted an absolute divorce late Thursday from J. A. Vallery by Chancellor F. H. Heis-kell. The case had been hanging fire for several months, following the filing of Mrs. Vallery's original bill for sepa-rate maintenance. This was amended Thursday by a bill asking absolute di-vorce.

FINDS SPY'S GLOVE.

DECATUR, Ill., July 20, (By International News Service.)—H. von Boechman, Wabash roundhouse employe, found an old glove while watching firemen fight a blaze in the Wabash shops here. Attracted by the peculiar sewing, he ripped it apart and found two maps of the fortifications of Amiene. France. The drawing was on tracing muslin and the maps when incased in oileight and saved between two layers of leather. The maps are thought to be German war maps of the world war. Who the glove belonged to or how it happened to be where it was could not be learned.

"POOR ME" MAY FACE CHARGE OF LARCENY

Confession of Eddie Davis, alias "Poor Me," said by police to have been made Friday, accounts for more than $1,000 worth of clothes and jewelry stolen in daylight burgularies within the past two months. Inspector of Detectives Griffin said Davis would be docketed Friday on charge of larceny. He was arrested Thursday night by Detectives Taylor and Jamison.

Griffin declares Davis may be the negro who robbed the apartment of Jake Groskind, police Gamewell operator, of several hundred dollars worth of silk shirts and other valuables. The inspector said Davis will be questioned later about this "job-" Davis" alleged confession includes robberies of three places where clothing and jewels were taken.

Herbert Smith, another alleged daylight prowler, also is held.

BIG REVIVAL CLOSES AT CRYSTAL SPRINGS

CRYSTAL SPRINGS, Miss., July 30. CRYSTAL SPRINGS, Miss., July 30. (Spl.)—The Baptist revival which has been under way here for the past two weeks closed Wednesday night after one of the most successful meetings ever held in the community. Arrangements were made in the beginning of the meeting to hold the services in the open and accordingly the seats from the Chautauqua auditorium were brought to town and placed on the lawn of the Baptist church providing seats for approximately 3,000 people.

From the opening of the meeting until its close these seats have been filled and overflowing and when the night was inclement and the services held in the church there was standing room only. The Rev. R. W. Tehot, evangelist, has been in charge of the meeting.
